Chapter 2214

Childhood Sweetheart Nicole smiled and said, “Okay then, just tell me what you need.” Michael nodded, turned around, and started playing with Chatty.

Nicole looked at the rapidly changing scenery outside the window and felt that her heart was at peace.

If only he was here...

If he was still in this world, he would definitely come back to her.

But when would he come back? They finally arrived at the villa.

Although they called it a villa, it was actually more like a castle.

It was a Gothic-style building with a long history that the royals used to live in.

The butler stayed in the villa to take care of the villa and its surroundings.

Chatty ran in holding Michael’s hand, and the butler immediately came out to greet them.

When Fischer saw that Chatty was back, he excitedly ran over to hug her.

Nicole was stunned for a moment when she saw Fischer.

“Fischer, didn’t your parents come to pick you up? You came back so soon?” Fischer pursed his lips in disappointment and scratched his head.

His tender and fair face looked so pitiful and aggrieved. Logan, who was next to him, coughed and came over to explain.

“I sent him there and met his parents.

They asked me to bring him back and didn’t even let him stay for a meal.

They were so busy that they were counting the seconds...” Nicole was shocked.

She was heartbroken when she looked at Fischer.

Although during the time Fischer lived in the Stanton Mansion, Nicole did not hear Fischer being homesick, that did not mean he did not miss his parents.

However, Nicole could not say this out loud.

Nicole walked over and touched Fischer’s head.

She said with a smile, “Fischer, you’re really lucky today! I’ll get them to prepare your favorite cheese-baked lobster for lunch.

I’ll take you guys out tomorrow, okay?” It was rare that Nicole brought Chatty out for a vacation, so she intended to let Chatty have some fun before leaving.

Fischer's eyes lit up.

He smiled happily and nodded solemnly.

“Okay! We want to go to the theme park and watch a play!” “Sure! Then you'll be responsible for taking care of Chatty!” “No problem, Godmom!” Fischer was easily coaxed, which made him likable.

Chatty admired her big brother and had been clinging to Michael.

When Michael went to the kitchen, Chatty would follow behind him eagerly like a little follower.

In the end, Fischer used an Ultraman robot to attract Chatty's attention.

Fischer watched as Chatty put skirts on the Ultraman. He could not bear to look at it directly.

Fischer pinched Chatty's cheek, which was soft, and smiled with bared teeth.

“Chatty, do you want to go out to play tomorrow?”

Chatty nodded and looked at him expectantly.

Fischer pointed to his own face.

Chatty reacted immediately, ran over, and gave him a kiss.

Logan and Roland, who were watching them from the side, were stunned.

They put down their work and watched this scene.

This pair of childhood sweethearts were so cute! It was so sweet that they had a toothache! Fischer pointed to the other side of his face and motioned for Chatty to kiss him again. He learned this trick from Clayton, and it really worked.

However, Chatty had limited patience. She got a little angry, thinking that Fischer backtracked on his promise.

In the next second, she did not kiss him but slapped him on the face.

She snorted angrily, picked up the toy next to her, and threw it at him.

The sweet atmosphere disappeared in an instant.

The two children switched to war mode.

To be precise, one of them attacked while the other got beaten.

Logan and Roland looked at each other for a second.

Hah, childhood sweethearts also had a rough patch.

What a bittersweet pair! Michael came downstairs and was shocked to see the two kids fighting.

Nicole got used to it and asked Michael to wash his hands.

They’re still good friends after they fight.” After all, the two children did not hold grudges and could forget everything in the blink of an eye.

Both Logan and Roland were glad that they were not kicked out to stay in a hotel.

There was nothing but rooms in the castle.

Thus, they enjoyed waking up in a well-lit state.

The dense forest outside was lush, and there was a fragrance of wild grass.

Michael and Nicole were playing tennis outside.

They changed into casual clothes and were sweating profusely.

Although Michael was young, he was growing fast, especially at this age.

They could already tell that he would be tall and good-looking in the future.

Nicole had not played tennis for a long time and was a little rusty.

After losing several rounds in a row, her competitiveness was stimulated.

The game between the two was in full swing.

By the time the children woke up, it was already afternoon.

Nicole and Michael were also well-rested after their game.

They went downstairs.

The butler went over to convey Kai's words.

“Ms. Stanton, the Third Young Master is going out to meet a friend.

He'll meet you on the cruise ship." Nicole nodded. Roland was going to take Nicole to deal with Clayton's investment projects.

Thus, in the afternoon, Michael and Logan stayed behind with Chatty and Fischer.

The local buildings on the street were unique, and Nicole could tell that the pace of life here was very slow.

Everyone was more focused on enjoying life.

Nicole wore a long gray dress with intricate patterns. It was elegant yet rustic, which made her look cool and regal.

After they got out of the car, Roland pointed to the tall building in front of him.

"Madam, Mr. Sloan is the owner of this building, but he leased it to many companies.

One of them is a medical device company.

Although it's not big, its quality and reputation are internationally renowned." Nicole nodded.

The results of the venture capital investment for this stage of the project were out.

If there was no problem, they only needed to follow up with the second stage of investment.

However, Roland purposely brought Nicole over to introduce her to these people, so Nicole did not know what his intention was.

Nicole followed Roland inside.

Sure enough, this brand received rave reviews all over the world.

She glanced at Roland.

Roland pursed his lips and said with a solemn expression, “The procedures for other projects are actually easy to handle, but this company is a little complicated because it used to be a family business.

Europeans value their business inheritance, and Mr. Sloan put in a lot of effort to invest in them.

Recently, they wanted to use their power to squeeze out Mr. Sloan’s share.” Other people got on the elevator, so Roland lowered his voice and spoke in a foreign language.

“That’s why the next batch of products hasn’t been put into production for a long time.

Also, their slogan is to support a pure European economy.” Were they trying to use an external force to make Clayton withdraw his investment? Nicole immediately understood.

“I see. So, they’re ditching us once they’re done using us?” Roland thought that her description was very apt.

“Right. That’s what it means.” Nicole clicked her tongue.

“Then just withdraw our investment.

Why should we continue investing in them?” Roland glanced at her and explained in a low voice, “Based on the contract, if we become shareholders, then all medical products will be sold to us at cost prices. Before we invested in this company, these kinds of medical devices would not get circulated in Mediana. The only way to get these products into Mediana is by going through other channels and importing them from other countries. That will drive up our cost and tariffs by nearly ten times the cost price.” °
